ANNEXURE A — SECTIONS CHARGED

Each section cited in item 4, with its heading in the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 and the punishment that section itself provides for.

Section	Heading	Chapter	Punishment provided
None recorded	—	—	—

Where a punishment is shown as not stated, the section defines the offence and the punishment is provided by another section — the Sanhita separates the two. Section 303 defines theft; section 305 provides the punishment for theft in a dwelling house. Nothing in this annexure should be read as indicating that an offence carries no penalty.

ANNEXURE B — SCHEDULE OF ELECTRONIC RECORDS

Each record relied upon, the digest computed on the collecting device before it left that device, and the chain of custody. Every transfer is a blockchain transaction; the transaction identifier is given so that a reader may confirm it without applying to the prosecution for anything.

ANNEXURE C — CERTIFICATE IN RESPECT OF ELECTRONIC RECORDS

Under Section 63 of the Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023 (formerly Section 65B of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872)

I, the officer subscribing below, having lawful control over the computer system by which the electronic records scheduled at Annexure B were produced, certify as follows.

1. Each record was produced by a device in regular use for the recording of information in the course of the lawful activities of the police station named above.

2. The digest of each record, stated in Annexure B, was computed by the collecting device over the bytes of the record before the record was transmitted from that device. The digest was recomputed on receipt and the two were found to agree; the record was not accepted otherwise.

3. Each digest was thereafter recorded in a transaction on a blockchain network. The transaction identifier for each is stated in Annexure B. Neither this office nor any other party can alter a record so entered.

4. Every transfer of custody was effected by the receiving party computing the digest of the record as it was received and submitting it for comparison. Where the digests agreed, the transfer was recorded. Where they did not, the transfer was refused and the refusal was itself recorded, as scheduled at Annexure B.

5. The contents of each record have not been altered at any time after collection. Any alteration, of a single byte, would produce a different digest from the one recorded, and the record as held may be tested against the digest by any person at any time.

6. Where a record is shown as held in encrypted form, it was encrypted after the digest was computed and before storage, and the digest certified above is the digest of the record itself and not of the encrypted copy.

PARTICULARS OF THE ANCHORING SYSTEM

Network	:	Not recorded
Case identifier on chain	:	`0xfad7ec5bc6ac6f6fe790ee58c3d83690d0ecb76e491ba7dd7f628517d9dea432`
Digest algorithm	:	SHA-256 (FIPS 180-4)
Encryption of stored copies	:	AES-256-GCM

Certified by the officer having control of the system

Name: Inspector Asha Kulkarni
Designation: Police Inspector
Signature and seal

HOW A RECIPIENT CHECKS THIS WITHOUT ASKING ANYONE

1. Compute the SHA-256 digest of the record as you hold it.

2. Compare it with the digest scheduled for that exhibit at Annexure B. They must be identical.

3. Look up the transaction identifier for that exhibit on the network named above. The digest recorded in it must be the same digest, and its timestamp must precede every later step.

On a private or local network, the transactions are inspected through the node operated by the court.

If step 1 and step 2 disagree, the record you hold is not the record that was collected. Nothing in this document, and no assurance from the prosecution, should persuade you otherwise.
